

Lindsay Boccardo is a nationally-recognized millennial expert, working with young talent and the organizations that employ them. She provides education and training to organizations through one-to-one programs, group coaching and seminars to facilitate top talent development.

She has partnered with organizations such as Cars.com, Intern Bridge and the Indiana Supreme Court, creating opportunities for millennials to make powerful contributions. Lindsay is committed to bringing generations of workers together to build strong companies.